What Educators are Saying

“As a literacy consultant, I am constantly promoting the importance of building content knowledge for students. Students who have strong background knowledge are better able to comprehend the text they encounter. “The Flixes” have been a great resource for this! One of the most popular features has been the read-aloud option that is embedded in each. Removing the text barrier allows all students to build content knowledge, even those who may still struggle with word recognition. I am excited to continue to share these resources with more teachers!”

TEACHERS FROM TITAN HILL INTERMEDIATE SCHOOL, LEWIS CENTRAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, COUNCIL BLUFFS

“We use all of these resources to support our current social studies and science curriculum. I also encourage students to research using these to help them answer questions they are curious about or even a subject they’re interested in.”

– 4th grade teacher

“We use BookFlix during independent reading centers. Students get to go explore their favorite read alouds once a week. This helps promote reading fluency and listening comprehension. We will also use TrueFlix or ScienceFlix whole group for either science or social studies content.”

– 2nd grade teacher

“We use TrueFlix and FreedomFlix consistently in our social studies lessons. They offer an engaging way for students to build content-area knowledge and make what is often heavy subject matter accessible to all students.”

– 3rd grade teacher

“I use BookFlix as an incentive for students. Many students dislike using real paperback books, so if they read their books without reminders, then they can use BookFlix for one session of read-to-self during the week. The students are more motivated to read because of being able to use BookFlix. One student told me that he actually read the paperback book and then found the book on BookFlix. He was sooooo excited!”
